MOOD: 😊 hopeful

MUSIC: Garbage - Metal Heart

"It'll probably be commercial suicide, but the music business is so fucked up now, maybe it'll be the most inaccessible record of our career and we'll have it be the biggest hit."

Boredom means catching up on the fact that Garbage is back in the studio, however. And look, two handed typing! Still no right thumb, but I have figured out how to maneuver around the cast more or less.

Ooo, "Metal Heart." (<https://www.livejournal.com/away?to=http%3A//www.azlyrics.com/lyrics/garbage/metalheart.html>).

How did we live before youtube?

Congratulations, you have achieved Not Textspeak! I can officially stop worrying about you now.

Mmm, Garbage. That chick has a voice.

She's only 17 years older than me. Surely that's a reasonable age difference.

No no, it's utterly unreasonable. Fifteen years is the max, that being how much older than you I am.

Can you dance like a spaz? Because to judge by that video, dancing like a spaz is hot.

Also, we already determined that your boy would beat me up.

I am all about the spazziness.

And I told my boy you're one of my imaginary Internet friends who lives in my computer, and he calmed down. Besides, if he beats you up, he won't be my boy anymore.

Aha - youtube. The kind of tube you do want.

And I'm all for the extreme dancing. I have "owned" several dancefloors in my time and have no shame whatsoever when it comes to "shaking my thang" and other killer moves. I like to think that the other people were moving backwards to give us more room, although I suspect they were actually "backing away slowly".

Dude! Age is all in the mind.

This will help explain why you will feel years younger every time they pull a tube and don't put it back. Soon you will be back to where you feel your proper age.

I spent a chunk of my senior year of college in an arm cast, hand to biceps. I can sympathize, but only so much, since you aren't having to figure out how to fasten a bra with a busted wing.

Congratulations on complete sentences. Less dopy drugs?

Bwah! That is one of the great mysteries of the ages. Zippers on jeans are not so one-handed as one would think, while we're talking hand/arm issues.

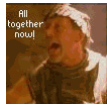

Also, putting on socks or pants without bending a knee. Several weeks in a hip to ankle brace taught me that knees are even more useful than I had previously thought.

I concluded it was a wrist issue as much as anything. I could do jeans, though, slowly and with occasional Bad Words

Be kind to your knees, you'll miss them when they're gone.

Speaking as someone who had both wrists varyingly stuffed up for a couple of years, this applies to most joints. So many things you do everyday rely on so many different parts working nominally, you don't realise it until they don't.

Yay for being able to use (most of) both hands! Glad to hear things are still getting better quickly.

Do try not to emulate Coyote too much though, and get yourself into more trouble immediately you get out of the last lot.

I actually bought an Acme Hamburger Patty Maker from my supermarket last year. (Nothing terribly complicated; think garlic press, except bigger.) I was so croggled by the name that I just had to buy it.

It works pretty well, too.

When I get really tired I revert to a typing posture/habit acquired when I was laid up with a badly broken leg. Shhh. Don't tell anyone.

In local news, one of our cats, who had himself a Great Escape a week and a bit ago, is back inside. He does the same thing every time he gets out, he hides under the house and yells at us for food. Then he does his Angry Kitten cover band act and won't let us near him.

Today I was a tricky two legs and got him inside. I told him Angry Kitten would mock him for being so gullible and soft. From his expression I wasn't telling him anything he didn't already know.

So I notice she's got her elbow wrapped. Then I spot a bandaid on the keyboard player's finger. And I start seriously looking at the other band members.

'Cause, dude, what if Garbage is secretly a superhero team? And they wrapped up defeating Galactus just in time to do that show?

Tell me that would not be awesome. Just try.

Wonder what her superhero identity is.

Yay! It gives quite a sense of accomplishment, doesn't it? I remember that from when I had a broken arm, way back in Year 8.

Now you just have to work out one-handed ten-pin bowling!

(Hint: Cast on one side and 12 lb bowling-ball on the other do not balance...).

We didn't live before YouTube. I swore with frustration this weekend at the new house without intarwebs, because I could only play Rufus Wainwright mp3s for my unenlightened roomie, and not videos. Did you see Gavin released a solo album? Gwen released him from her wardrobe, where he's been stashed with her accessories.
